EAC YOUTH POLICY (2013)

FOREWORD

In this Millennium of Science and Technology, young men and women are the greatest asset for the present and future. They represent the driving force behind social, economic and political reforms in the sphere of rapid global changes. Our society's progress is determined among other things by how much we involve the youth in building the future. It is therefore important to prepare youths as leaders, decision makers, good citizens, entrepreneurs, parents and guardians because they have vital roles to play in the socio-economic development of the East African Community.

The EAC Youth Policy comes in appropriate time where the youth in all Partner States are facing many challenges. It is a fact that all Partner States face common issues such as school dropouts and those out of school, rural youth, urban youth migrants, female youth, youth in armed conflict situations and disaster areas, youth in-mates and those just released from prisons, youth with disabilities, the illiterates, domestic servants/helpers, orphans and youths on the streets, youths infected with/affected by HIV and AIDS, the unemployed, youth in school /institutions and security agencies, the terminally ill, youth addicted to drugs and substances and the youth below age of 18 years employed in the informal sector/economy.

There have been various efforts to overcome this situation through established youth organizations, policies, strategies and plans. However the situation still needs comprehensive strategies to address these challenges. This policy therefore provides for a common approach to address the various youth issues at EAC level and ensures that the programs initiated at regional level are youth centred. It also aims at ensuring that the youth in general are fully engaged and play their roles and responsibilities alongside other citizens in the development of their countries and in the EAC integration process.

It is our hope that this policy will be a useful tool for promoting youth in all Partner States.

Dr. Richard Sezibera

Ambassador

Secretary General

East African Community

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

In all parts of the world, young people, living in countries at different stages of development and in different socio-economic situations, aspire to live full lives in their societies. Certain elements would help in this process such as ensuring access to quality education, employment opportunities, adequate food and nutrition, a physical and social environment that promotes good health and protection from disease, enjoyment of human rights and fundamental freedoms, participation in decision-making processes, and access to cultural, recreational and sports activities.

However, the increasing youth challenges is aggravated by among other things the global development including globalization. Poverty and effects of unemployment have adverse impact on youth development. This calls for joint efforts within the EAC region in order to put in place comprehensive policies and strategies to overcome these challenges, as provided for under Article 120 (c) of the Treaty for the Establishment of the East African Community, whereby “the Partner States undertake to closely co-operate amongst themselves in the field of social welfare with respect to, among others, “the development and adoption of a common approach towards disadvantaged and marginalized groups, including children, the youth, the elderly and persons with disabilities through rehabilitation and provision of, among others, foster homes, healthcare, education and training.”

The Treaty also stipulates that in order to further develop as a harmonious community, the following principles will apply:

- a) People centred and market-driven cooperation
- b) Multilevel participation and the involvement of a wide range of stakeholders in the process of integration.

The overall objective of this Youth Policy therefore is, to guide the East African Community on the planning, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of programmes to address youth issues in the region while assuring sustainable social, economic and political development.

The policy prescribes strategic priority areas and actions to guide the implementation and address youth challenges. It also articulates the need for harmonizing definitions of the youth, related legislation and programmes carried out across the region. In view of the fact that the youth constitute the largest segment of the population in all Partner States, makes them a critical section of society to forge forward the EAC integration agenda.

This policy is based on guiding principles which underline the respect for cultural, religious and ethical values, equity and accessibility, gender inclusiveness, good governance and national unity, youth participation, youth empowerment, team work and partnerships.

Furthermore, this policy is developed within the context of existing national, regional and international policy frameworks and charters including National Youth Development Policies, National development plans, the African Youth Charter and the World Programme of Action for Youth to the Year 2000 and beyond among others.

In order to have efficiency and effective implementation of this policy, each Partner State shall create an enabling environment through policy, legislation and institutional framework to operationalise the policy provisions. At regional level, the EAC shall also establish a Youth Development Fund with the aim of mobilizing financial resources for the implementation of the policy and establish a youth desk to coordinate EAC youth programming and engagements. In addition, EAC Organs and Institutions of the Community shall put in place mechanisms for follow-up and establish partnership and networking to ensure successful implementation of the policy. These include capability and capacity building, monitoring and evaluation tools, resource mobilization and service delivery.

1.0. INTRODUCTION

1.1. Definition of Youth

The youth are defined by the Constitution of each EAC Partner State. In Kenya, youth are persons in the age bracket 18 to 35 years, whilst in Burundi and Tanzania, youths are defined as persons between the ages of 15 and 35 years. Ugandan's Constitution defines youths as any male and female between the ages of 18 and 30 years, while the Rwandan National Policy defined the youth as females and males between the ages of 14 and 35 years.

For the purpose of this EAC Policy, youth are persons between the ages of 15 to 35 years.

1.2. Youth Profile

The population of youth (15 to 35 years) was estimated in 2011 to represent 45% (48 millions) of the total population of the region. This age bracket is expected to grow in the next 20 years to 82 million people.

2.0. BACKGROUND

There are several processes that have led to the development of this policy. They include Council Decisions based on the recommendations of the EAC Forum of Ministers responsible for Social Development made during its first, second and third meetings held in Kigali, from 15th to 19th September 2008, in Bujumbura from 2nd to 7th October, 2010 and in Nairobi from 29th June to 2nd July 2013, respectively.

The 1st Meeting of the Forum of Ministers responsible for Social Development considered the need for regional strategies on challenges in the areas of Gender, Youth, Children, Social Protection and Community Development, including Gender Based Violence (GBV), the need to harmonize gender, youth and children policies, women and youth empowerment through skills development and life skills programs, and community empowerment to facilitate effective participation in social development programs.

The Forum of Ministers also identified several strategies, including development of a regional comprehensive program to address Sexual and Gender Based Violence, Monitoring and Evaluation frameworks, promotion of social protection interventions targeting the poor and vulnerable groups; development of appropriate structures, policies and laws to improve youth participation; increased opportunities for vocational education and training, establishment of vulnerability indices and capacity building for communities.

On the issue of youth empowerment and participation in national development, the meeting underscored the need for clear national and regional strategies consistent with international commitments entered by individual Partner States in this regard.

The Forum made the following recommendations to the Council of Ministers:

- a) Through the relevant Sectoral Council, to approve the establishment of a Sectoral Council on Gender, Youth, Children, Social Protection and Community Development, considering that under the existing arrangement these important areas are not individually being adequately addressed;
- b) Through relevant Sectoral Council, to approve the creation of an East African Youth Council and the inclusion of persons with disability into the social development programs of the EAC and Partner States;
- c) Request that youth and gender equality issues be fully harmonized and mainstreamed in all development policies and programs.

The 2nd Meeting of the Forum of Ministers responsible for Social Development agreed on the key priority areas of cooperation in social development and recommended to the Council of Ministers to inter alia:

- a) Urge Partner States which had not done so, to ratify the African Youth Charter;
- b) Direct EAC Secretariat to adopt employment creation and productivity enhancement strategies for youth within the EAC social development framework;
- c) Direct EAC Secretariat to highlight International Days on Gender, Youth, Children and community development and make statements on the occasion of those days;
- d) Conduct regional campaigns against harmful cultural practices including Female Genital Mutilation, Gender Based Violence, HIV/AIDs and drug abuse;
- e) Identify regional and international markets for women and youth products;
- f) Harmonize and mainstream Youth, Disabled, and Elderly and Children issues in development policies, strategies and plans;
- g) Develop a regional youth policy;
- h) Establish regional youth resource centres;
- i) Develop youth exchange programs, skills and entrepreneurship;
- j) Establish and enhance EAC youth awards; and
- k) Conduct campaigns for prevention of HIV/AIDs, prostitution, drug abuse among youth.

The recommendations of the Forum of Ministers responsible for Social Development were adopted by the 18th, 19th and 21st Meetings of the Council of Ministers, respectively.

In the same vein, the 21st Meeting of the Council established the Sectoral Council on Gender, Youth, Children, Social Protection and Community Development (EAC/CM21/Decision75).

The 1st Meeting of the Sectoral Council held in Arusha from 27th February to 2nd March 2012, after considering the Draft Youth Policy, directed the Secretariat to finalise the policy and present it to the 2nd Meeting of the Sectoral Council. In addition, the 25th Meeting of the Council held in Bujumbura from 27th to 31st August 2012 “directed the Secretariat to develop an EAC Policy on Gender Equality, Youth, Children, Social Protection and Community Development (EAC/CM25/Directive 24).”

The formulation of this Policy is also grounded in the 4th EAC Development Strategy (2011-2016) and the subsequent EAC Strategic Plan on Gender, Youth, Children, Social Protection and Community Development (2012-2016).

This policy has been developed by the EAC Secretariat after wide consultations both at Partner States level and at the EAC regional level. National consultations involving a myriad of stakeholders including government, development partners and civil society were conducted to ensure ownership and understanding of the obligations and responsibilities of all stakeholders.

3.0. RATIONALE AND JUSTIFICATION

In the EAC Partner States, the youth comprise a larger segment of the total population which presents both opportunities and challenge. The lives of many youths are marred with poverty, inadequate education and skills, inadequate work /employment opportunities, exploitation, diseases such as HIV/ AIDS, drugs and substance abuse, civil unrest and gender discrimination. The environment they live in presents a number of challenges and risks that undermine the traditional social support systems which inhibit the capacity to negotiate and explore the opportunities to facilitate their transition into adulthood.

Partner States have made efforts to initiate and implement various youth development programmes, in inter alia the following areas: employment, health, education and training as well as participation in the integration processes. Despite these efforts, the youth continue to experience numerous challenges that hamper the full exploitation of their potentials. The major constraints that hinder the Partner States from effectively addressing the youth challenges include high population growth, lack of appropriate competitive skills, inadequate resources, lack of proper coordination mechanisms and clear institutional structures.

EAC recognizes that youth are a crucial asset and an important key resource in social economic and political development of the community. Therefore, it is the responsibility of the Community to ensure that the youths’ energies and skills are harnessed and nurtured to promote the social economic and political development of the region. Consistent with the above commitment, the youth have a responsibility as well, and a duty to ensure that their aspirations, hopes and dreams are fully realized through participatory engagement in all the EAC Integration Processes.

This policy therefore seeks to institutionalize youth focused programming within the EAC development and integration processes as well as set benchmarks and guidelines for Partner States mainstreaming of youth issues in national development and governance processes. It's a clear framework to consider development and participation of the youth at the centre of all EAC integration processes.

4.0. VISION, MISSION AND OBJECTIVES OF THE POLICY

This policy recognizes that Partner States have varied legal definitions of youth. For the purposes of this policy and consistent with the definition in the African Youth Charter, Youth shall mean young men and women between the ages of 15 and 35 years.

This definition does not in any way undermine nor seek to change the legislative definition and interpretation of a Youth as stipulated in the Constitutions of various Partner States, regional and International instruments. It simply provides a basis for programming and design of interventions.

4.1. Vision

An integrated East African Community where its youth are empowered to fully participate and benefit in all facets of the region's development".

4.2. Mission

The mission of this Policy is "to create an enabling environment for effective youth participation and empowerment in developing and sustaining the East African Community".

4.3. Objectives of the EAC Youth Policy

The Objectives of this policy are to:-

- (i) Mainstream youth issues in policies, laws and programmes at the Community level;
- (ii) Sensitize national and regional policy makers on the need to identify and mainstream youth issues in the development of the Community;
- (iii) Empower the youth to develop their potential, creativity and skills as productive and dynamic members of the Community;

- (iv) Ensure meaningful youth participation in political processes and peace building for political, social and economic stability of the East African Community;
- (v) Ensure meaningful youth participation in the design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of national and regional development plans, policies and strategies;
- (vi) Mobilize resources for youth programmes and projects at all levels; and
- (vii) Promote the values and ethos outlined in this policy.

4.4. Guiding Principles

The key principles that underlie the policy are:

a) Respect of Cultural Belief Systems and Ethical Values

The policy respects the cultural, religious, customary and ethical backgrounds of the people in the region and conforms to universally recognized human rights, without discrimination based on gender, race/origin, age, ethnicity, creed, political affiliation or social status.

b) Equity and Accessibility

The policy subscribes to the principles of equal opportunities and equitable distribution of programmes, services, and resources. It also endeavours to promote access to socio-economic opportunities for the youth.

c) Gender Inclusiveness

The policy underscores the need to promote a gender-inclusive approach to the development of youth. It seeks to promote gender equity and equality, including working to eliminate gender discrimination and violence.

d) Good Governance

The policy seeks to promote the values of good governance, a just and tolerant society, promotion of transparency and accountability and a spirit of nationhood and patriotism. In addition, the policy serves as a channel to promote values of conscientiousness, inclusiveness, selflessness, volunteerism and pursuit of good conduct

e) Mainstreaming Youth Issues

The needs, opportunities and challenges facing the youth are concerns for the Community. The youth policy aims at ensuring that youth issues are reflected in all sectors of national development, on both the micro and macro levels, within the public, private sectors and civil society. It re-affirms the youth as a distinct stakeholder group whose participation is vital for national development and EAC integration.

f) Youth Participation

The Policy seeks to promote youth participation in democratic and decision making processes as well as in community and civic affairs while ensuring that programmes are youth centred.

g) Youth Empowerment

The Policy advocates for creation of a supportive socio-cultural, economic and political environment that will empower the youth to be active partners in development.

h) Networking and Partnership

The Policy underscores the promotion of networking, team work and collaboration among all the stakeholders to champion the youth agenda in the integration processes

4.5. Linkages with National, Regional, Global Policies, Strategies, Treaties and Protocols

This Policy does not in any way seek to neither undermine nor challenge the various existing National, regional and Global Policies, Strategies, Treaties and Protocols, but it is consistent and complementary to inter alia the following instruments:

- a) The Treaty for the Establishment of the East African Community (1999).
- b) The National Youth Policy (2012) of Burundi
- c) The National Youth Policy for Youth Development 2007 of Kenya
- d) The National Youth Policy of Rwanda 2008
- e) The National Youth Development Policy 2005 of Zanzibar and Tanzania 2007
- f) The National Youth Policy 2001 of Uganda
- g) The African Youth Charter, 2006
- h) International World Programme of Action for youth to the year 2000 and beyond
- i) The Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action (1995)
- j) The Commonwealth Programme of Action for Youth Empowerment to the year 2017
- k) The Lisbon Declaration (1998)

5.0. MAJOR ISSUES AFFECTING THE YOUTH

5.1. Health Related Issues

The youth are facing a myriad of health related problems, including widespread malaria, malnutrition, HIV and AIDS, Sexually Transmitted Infections (STIs), drug and substance abuse as well as limited access to health services.

HIV/AIDS is a major health concern in East Africa. Available statistics show that the youth make up 33% of Kenyans infected with HIV and AIDS.

According to the EICV3, 1% of youth aged between 15 and 24 years tested were found to be HIV positive, out of 3% total prevalence rate in Rwanda.

In Tanzania, HIV prevalence among women and men aged 15-49 has decreased from 7.0% in the 2003-2004 to 5.3% in the 2011-2012.

The prevalence rate for HIV/AIDS currently in Uganda stands at 7.3 percent and is more pronounced among the youth as compared to the adult population. According to the World Health Organisation, 74 percent of all new HIV infections are among youths below the age of 25 years.

Other issues include teenage pregnancy, early marriages, female genital mutilation, domestic violence, defilement and rape. In Uganda, according to the Demographic health survey 2011, teenage pregnancy is recorded at 24.5 percent while in Rwanda it's recorded at 6 percent. In Tanzania, women begin bearing in their teenage years with 23 percent of women aged 15 – 19 years pregnant or already having children.

5.2. Education and Training

In Burundi and Kenya, many youth drop out of school and college due to poverty and high costs of education. The youth enrolment is approximately 40 % in Burundi.

The Rwandan 2002 General Census revealed that the rate of registration and in take for primary school education in 2004 was 93.0 %. But the rate of those who repeat the year or drop out before they cover all the primary school education still constitutes a big problem.

In Tanzania, since 1980s, access, quality, and efficiency of education programs and infrastructure, almost at all levels have been on the decline.

In Uganda, by 1990, 24.3% of males and 34.7% of female above 6 years were not attending school. Only 2.9 million out of 3.9 million were enrolled in school irrespective of age. Amongst those attending school, the dropout rates for females was higher than that of male counter parts with disparities becoming larger with the education ladder.

5.3. Information and Communication Technology

The majority of the youth in East Africa face challenges in accessing career, business and education opportunities available, due to limited access to ICT, prohibitive cost and limited and poor infrastructure development especially in the rural areas.

However in Rwanda, all public schools joined the information superhighway by the end of 2008. Already, out of the 400 secondary schools that have been fully equipped in ICT, 39 of them have wireless Internet access.

In order to address issues pertaining to ICT in the country, Uganda has fully established a ministry in charge of ICT and a National Information and Technology Authority (NITA). The ministry of ICT together with Education ministry has also introduced ICT in schools and made it compulsory in teacher training institutions.

5.4. Employment

It is estimated that 51.1% of Burundians are youth and considered as a formidable driving force for development. However, 14 % of these youth are unemployed and only 1% of school graduates can access jobs in the public sector.

The youth bracket in Kenya is between 18 and 35 and 72% of the unemployed population is below 30 years old. The youth unemployment rate, currently standing at 66% of the population is increasing rapidly thus contributing to underemployment, increasing the pool of the working poor and gender inequality in labour force absorption.

The average age for jobseekers in Rwanda is 22 years and in 2007, 240,000 people got jobs, while projections indicate that in the next five years, there will be one million jobseekers. Youth are largely employed in informal sector, the equivalent of 4.1 million people. According to Integrated Household Living Conditions Survey (EICV 3) conducted in 2010 by the National Institute of Statistics of Rwanda (NISR), the overall employment rate for youth is 70.2%, where as 1% of the youth are unemployed. The youth make up 39% of Rwanda's 10.5 million people.

In Uganda, absolute poverty levels stand at 24.5 percent (MFPED 2012) with the youth representing a bigger segment of those who are poor due to high unemployment levels estimated at 7 percent and under employment currently at 12 percent.

5.5. Participation

Despite their numerical superiority, youth in Burundi are the least represented in political and economic spheres due to societal attitudes, socio-cultural and economic barriers, and lack of proper organisation structures through which they can participate.

In Kenya, the formation of the National Youth Council in 2012 has given the youth a platform to articulate their political voices in national issues. The youth enterprise development fund provides interest free loans to youth business initiatives. In Rwanda, youths are taken as serious and reliable partners when it comes to devising, planning and implementing community development policies and programmes. Taking their concerns and proposals into account plays an important role in decision making processes in the Rwandan community.

In Uganda, trend analysis of youth participation in leadership and decision making since independence reveals high levels of marginalization and lack of meaningful participation of the youth. Since 1986 however, youth participation gathered momentum through youth representation at all levels of the local government structures. To-date the number of youth in both the local governance structures and the national legislature has tremendously increased. The negative anecdote however, is the lack of meaningful participation arising from inadequate facilitation to enable the existing institutions plan and engage youth in real decision making as provided for in the mandates of such institutions.

5.6. Sports, Outdoor Activities and Recreation Facilities

Sports and recreation facilities provide the youth with an opportunity to socialize and spend their time productively, strengthening and developing their character and talents. However, such facilities are scarce in East Africa and where they exist; they are not easily accessible to the youth.

5.7. Environment and Climate Change

Environmental degradation continues to threaten the sustainable use of natural resources and is normally manifested in the form of deforestation, destruction of water catchment areas, depletion of non-renewable resources and destruction of plants and animals. This further limits access to resources by the present and future generations.

Youth involvement in environmental degradation in their effort to earn a living through uncontrollable charcoal burning, brick making, wetland destruction etc. has had a negative effect on sustainable environment management.

5.8. Crime and Deviant Behaviour

Idleness as a result of the lack of constructive engagement results into restlessness and involvement in crime and deviant behaviour in Burundi.

Due to unemployment and under employment, many youths have enrolled in outlawed sects and Para-military groups that engage in crime, drug and substance abuse and other deviant behaviours in Kenya.

Drug abuse is one of the major challenges affecting the youth in Rwanda. This was aggravated by the 1994 Genocide where a number of youth were inducted into drug and substance abuse

In Uganda, more than 63% of the in-mates are youths. This locks out a large number of otherwise productive age group that could contribute positively to national development. Male youths feature more prominently in crime figures than the female youths.

5.9. Rural-Urban Migration

Migration and urbanization is an important component of the region's population change and have been increasing. Most of the migrants tend to be youths, usually after secondary school, with employment as the motivation for migration. Further the majority of migrants are still males, but with more education for girls the male to female ratio will soon reduce. The primary destinations are the major urban centres, although the less educated end up in small urban areas. This becomes a challenge when the supposedly expected opportunities in urban areas never materialize resulting into illicit youth behaviours and an upsurge of crime.

6.0. TARGET GROUPS

The EAC Youth Policy provides a unique opportunity for improving the quality of life for all East African Youth. However, certain categories of youth have been identified for special attention due to their vulnerability and circumstances of living. These groups therefore need special programmes. They include:

- a) The unemployed youth
- b) Orphans
- c) The female youth migrants
- d) Urban youth migrants

- f) Youth in the informal sector

- g) The street youths

- q) School dropout and out of school youth
- r) Youth in refugee camps and internally displaced youth
- s) Youth addicted to drugs and substances
- t) Youth in-mates and those just released from prisons
- u) Employed youth below the age of 18.
